Aged Man Meets Death Under Wheels of Auto

RIVER OF CAR GIVEN FREEDOM IN $1,000 BOND

John C. Aderhold, Sr., fatally injured while crossing Street Not Far from His Home.

VE OTHER PERSONS INJURED IN CRASHES

Two Women Are Hurt When Their Automobile Crashes Into Street Car on Sunday Morning.

Crushed beneath the wheels of an automobile Sunday morning at 11 o'clock, John C. Aderhold, Sr., 131 Washington street, College Park, died of his injuries Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock. John Bates, Griffin, Ga., driver of the car, was released under $1,000 bond. Five other persons were injured in accidents during the day.

The crash in which Aderhold was killed occurred about one block from home, as he was crossing Main street at Columbia avenue, in College Park, to board a street car. Witnesses told police that Bates' machine was traveling at an excessive rate of speed and in attempting to bring it to a halt, the car swerved, its side striking Aderhold to the ground, the wheels passing over his body.

The injured man was taken to his home where he died at 4 o'clock Monday morning after internal injuries.

Released on Bond.

Bates was taken into custody by police and held until he had posted bond. He declared his machine was traveling at a moderate rate of speed, claiming that Aderhold walked suddenly into its path. Bates stated that Bates' machine did 21 feet before it was brought to a stop, according to police.

Aderhold is survived by two sons, E. and H. P. Aderhold; one daughter, Mrs. O. F. Harper; one son, A. G. Aderhold and one sister, Mrs. A. W. Woodall.

Auto-Trolley Crash.

Mrs. William H. Gray, 29, of 609 Spruill street, and Mrs. C. A. Hartman, of Park avenue, narrowly escaped death shortly after 11 o'clock Sunday morning when the auto in which they were riding crashed head-on into an out-bound trolley street car at Edgewood avenue and Spruce street.

Both the victims were taken to the Georgia Baptist hospital in an ambulance of Avery & Lowndes. Mrs. Gray is suffering from bruises and abrasions about the head and neck. Mrs. Hartman escaped with minor abrasions and bruises.

Patrolman I. B. Howard, who was duty at the time, was near the scene of the accident and conducted investigation. He was told that the crash was caused by Charles Pittman, of Decatur, driving his car into the trolley street car.

PRINCE OF WALES MUST SPEND WEEK IN BED OVER FALL

London, March 16.—The Prince of Wales, who was injured Saturday when he came a cropper in the steeplechase of the army, point-to-point meeting at Arbroath, will have to rest up during the week, although his condition was said today to be not serious.

A statement issued officially at St. James' palace tonight said the prince had passed a good night and spent a quiet day in bed and that he was progressing satisfactorily.

CURB ON LOOTERS SEEN AS RESULT OF GRAFT SCANDAL

Observer Predicts Teapot Dome Exposure Will Bring New Safeguards Against Graft.

BY RAYMOND CLAIPEL.

Washington, March 16.—Since last October, when Senator Thomas J. Walsh, of Montana, in face of considerable skepticism and general indifference, began piecing together the hidden story of Teapot Dome, there has come a series of sensational disclosures of such gravity as to produce a scandal which is destined to leave a deep impress upon the political life of the country for years to come.

The senate investigation is drawing to a close. After a few more days spent in following up several incomplete lines of incidental inquiry, a report will be drafted which will provide a basis for new legislation designed to safeguard the billions of dollars in treasure which are contained in the vast tracts of oil, coal and forest lands, held by the federal government for use as needed in future time.

Already this investigation has resulted in:

- 1.—Resignation of Secretary of the Navy Denby, who acquiesced in Albert B. Fall's scheme to open the naval oil reserves to private exploitation through secret agreements.
- 2.—Filing of suits to cancel the Teapot Dome lease, and preparation of similar suits to be filed this week cancelling the California naval oil reserve leases to Edward L. Doheny.
- 3.—Disclosures of surprising financial transactions between the parties to the Sinclair and Doheny leases, involving "loans" to Fall of $100,000 from Doheny and $25,000 from Sinclair, and lavish expenditure by Doheny among army officials for use of their services in furthering his ends.
- 4.—The awakening of general suspicion as to the integrity and ethical conduct of many public officials which is now finding voice in the investigation of Daugherty, the alleged bribery of congressmen, and the

SLAYER OF MATE AND SON KILLED IN DUEL IN HOTEL

Wyoming Sheriff Drops His Man in Hostelry After Being Target for Two Shots.

WIFE SLAIN ON RETURN FROM PARTY AT CHURCH

Letter to Friend Asking Windup of Business Affairs Was First Clue to Baring of Murders.

Casper, Wyo., March 16.—Fred Van Gorden, 42, Casper real estate and insurance agent, was shot to death in a duel with Sheriff Albert Peyton, of Converse county, at Douglas, Wyo., at 2:30 o'clock this morning when the officer entered a hotel where Van Gorden had taken a room, to arrest him on charges of slaying his wife and 12-year-old son, Arthur.

The body of Mrs. Pearl Van Gorden, the wife, prominent society woman, was found floating in Dump Creek, two miles east of Casper, at noon today. The son's body later was found nearby in the water. The lad had been shot twice.

Van Gorden had been involved in financial difficulties and, according to friends, was being threatened with arrest by his creditors on a charge of forgery and embezzlement.

Fearing Pet Dog.

Police believe that sometime after 4:30 or 5 o'clock last night, Van Gorden shot and killed his wife, Van Gorden son in the Van Gorden home, in the city's best residential district. Then, police believe, he wrapped both bodies in sheets and smuggled them directly into the garage built onto the house. There he placed them in the rear seat of a large touring car.

Fearing the barking of his dog might attract the attention of the neighbors, Van Gorden shot and killed the animal near the front door of his house. Then, leaving the home and garage locked up to make things appear all right to neighbors, police believe Van Gorden started for Douglas, 50 miles east of here, after dark. He dumped both bodies in the first stream he reached.

Arriving in Douglas about midnight, he went to the Dabonte hotel. Sheriff Peyton, on information from Casper officers, took a room across the hall from the room occupied by Van Gorden.

Scores Three Hits.

About 2:30 o'clock this morning as Van Gorden was proceeding down the hotel hallway, Peyton called to him to halt. Van Gorden sought shelter

Worshippers Turn Fire Fighters As Church Burns

Kelley's Chapel Razed Sunday—Plans for Rebuilding Are Made.

Decatur, Ga., March 16.—(Special.)—The congregation of Kelley's chapel, located ten miles from Decatur, assembled this morning for the regular Sunday services, were forced instead to form an impromptu band of fire fighters and operate a bucket line when sparks from the chimney set fire to the roof at about the time the choir should have been singing the opening hymn.

Despite the brave efforts of the assembled worshippers, however, the church was burned to the ground, the damage being estimated at approximately $3,000. A large part of the furnishings were saved, including several paintings.

Only three men were in the church when early arrivals discovered the blaze at about 11:30 o'clock. The alarm was immediately sent out, and not only those who came to attend church, but the entire countryside joined in the fight.

The absence of practically any fire fighting apparatus handicapped the workers, as they were forced to carry water in buckets from a well 200 yards from the burning structure. No ladders were available, and although a hole was chopped through the roof from the inside, the dribble of water from the buckets hardly served to check the flames.

Plans for rebuilding the church were immediately made, and already a committee has been named to direct the campaign to raise a rebuilding fund.

Cyclorama Funds For Day Snatched By Auto Bandits

Aged Confederate Veterans Report Bold Robbery in Grant Park.

J. T. Walker and J. T. Green, aged Confederate veterans, of 36 Marion street, managers of the cyclorama at Grant park, were held up and robbed late Sunday night of about $50, representing the day's receipts, by two unmasked bandits who jumped suddenly from a high-powered automobile which blocked their path in one of the dark roadways leading out of the park.

According to the two veterans, they had closed the cyclorama and were leaving the park. Just before reaching Georgia avenue an automobile drove out of the shadows of one of the drives in the park. Two men jumped out, seized the satchel containing the money, and getting back into the machine sped out Georgia avenue.

Police were furnished with detailed descriptions. The aged men were so excited, they told police, that they failed to obtain the license number of the machine.

M'ADOO ENDS TRIP IN AUGUSTA TODAY

Speech This Morning Completes Successful Tour of State—Leaves for South Dakota.

Augusta, Ga., March 16.—(Special.)—William Gibbs McAdoo arrived in Augusta late this afternoon from Savannah. Mr. McAdoo immediately went to the Bon Air-Vanderbilt hotel, where he will remain until tomorrow, at which time he will leave for Columbia, S. C., where he will deliver an address to the South Carolina legislature. Mr. McAdoo made the trip from Savannah to Augusta by automobile, and his car was stopped in many towns along the route by citizens of the different towns, who crowded around his machine, eager to shake hands and welcome him.

Due to an urgent call to South Dakota, Mr. McAdoo will speak in Augusta tomorrow morning, instead of at night, as previously planned. The election in South Dakota occurs on March 25, and for this reason he was compelled to cut short his stay in Augusta. He will leave here at 11 o'clock by automobile for Columbia, where he will remain only a short time. He will board a train there for South Dakota straight through.

The visit of Mr. McAdoo to Augusta has created the greatest interest here and in the surrounding counties, and it is expected that thousands will gather at the courthouse tomorrow morning to hear his address.

The fact that he will remain in Augusta only a short while has prevented the city from giving him a royal reception. It was planned to entertain Mr. McAdoo with an informal luncheon tomorrow afternoon, but these arrangements had to be called off when it was announced that he would have to proceed to South Dakota as early as possible.

Show To Teach Atlantans Art of Beautifying Homes

One of the most attractive houses in the better homes exhibit which will be open to the public from March 30 to April 6, is located on Morning-side drive, the third house from Piedmont avenue, in the new residential development known as Morningside.

It is one of the ten handsome homes recently built in this delightful section, all of which were designed and constructed by Joseph S. Shaw, construction engineer. The house was loaned to the sponsors of this movement by J. R. Smith & M. S. Rankin, realtors, who represent Morningside Park, Inc., which corporation is developing a large tract of land into a beautiful residence section known as "Morningside."

This house has been designed in a style without trying to be a lavish imitation, entirely inappropriate to modern conditions, is yet very reminiscent of and has much of the ex-ceeding charm of the houses one may see in the country districts of England.

REPORT ON BONUS HAS CLEAR TRACK FOR HOUSE VOTE

Four Republican Members of Committee To Bring Minority Report Opposing Compensation.

INSURANCE PLAN FREE FROM TAX HIKE

Cost of Policies Can Be Stretched Over Twenty Years and Be Paid by Expense Reductions.

Washington, March 16.—The report of the house ways and means committee on the new soldier bonus bill which will be presented to the house tomorrow and voted on Tuesday, was made public today by Chairman Green, estimating the maximum cost of the measure at $2,119,000,000 spread over twenty years. The cost, the report said, could be met by anticipated savings in current expenditures of the government.

A minority report signed by four republican members of the committee—Representatives Treadway, Massachusetts; Tilton, Connecticut; Watson, Pennsylvania, and Mills, New York—attacked the giving of a bonus as an "unsound principle" and declared its cost would limit tax reduction in future years.

Passage Is Predicted.

The bill provides for paid-up 20-year endowment life insurance policies and cash payments to veterans not entitled to more than $50 in ad-justed service compensation.

Proponents of the measure predict its passage Tuesday although a two-thirds majority will be necessary, the bill coming up under suspension of rules which limits debate and prohibits amendments.

Members of the democratic veterans' group were disturbed today because they had been denied the opportunity under the rule of offering an amendment providing for full cash payments as an option of the measure, but leaders indicated most of them would vote for the bill and depend on senate action for the full cash payment option.

Twenty-one of the 22 democratic members from New York state signed a statement today declaring they favored passage of soldier bonus legislation but preferred "immediate, all-cash payments."

Cost Is Definite.

Chairman Green in his report said two bonus bills had passed the house and one of them both the senate and house. The latter, he said, was vetoed by President Harding, but the present measure was framed "so that it will become law." It would confer substantial benefits on the soldiers, he said. Its cost would be capable of accurate and definite determination and the necessary appropriations could be made without embarrassing the treasury.

The average of the insurance policies, it was estimated, would be $922. The policies would be valued on the

VETERANS GUARD BORDERS TO STOP EXPORTS OF FOOD

Brussels, March 16.—Manifestations by war veterans against the high cost of living are increasing. Most of them are taking the form of processions in an endeavor to persuade dealers to lower the prices of foodstuffs. One such demonstration succeeded this morning in obtaining reductions of from 20 to 25 per cent at the Saint Gilles market, a suburb of Brussels.

The veterans are planning to cord on the frontiers to prevent exports of foodstuffs to Holland and Germany.

HOOVER DISCLOSES ALIEN MONOPOLY ON RAW MATERIAL

Commerce Secretary Tells Senator Capper Anti-Trust Bars Should Be Dropped to Protect U. S.

Washington, March 16.—Nine raw materials essential to American industry and agriculture whose principal production sources are abroad are controlled in greater or less degree by combinations of foreign producing organizations, Secretary Hoover wrote today to Senator Capper, republican, Kansas.

The circumstances affecting each commodity have been determined by special commerce department investigations, and the secretary asserted the situation required federal legislation, suggesting particularly modification of foreign trade statutes to allow American purchasers to combine in their buying, without regard to existing anti-trust laws.

He advocated the extension of the Webb-Pomeroy act, which allows American producers to combine for the purpose of selling in export so as to permit the setting up of common purchasing agencies, by American interests which utilize the monopolized foreign raw materials.

Foreign Monopolies or combinations are potentially or actually in control of prices and distribution of the following commodities:

"Nitrates and iodine are controlled through a British selling agency and reinforced by export duties in Chile. "Potash is controlled by combinations of German producers.

"Crude rubber and gutta-percha are controlled partly by legislative action and partly by voluntary combinations.

Gerald Chapman Nabbed As Photo Exposes Identity

Million Dollar Bandit Staged Sensational Flight From Atlanta Prison.

Louisville, Ky., March 16.—A man said to have been identified by a picture as Gerald Chapman, wanted in New York city in a $1,000,000 mail truck robbery, was arrested at Central City, Ky., tonight. A woman said to be his wife and two children were with him.

Chapman made a sensational escape from the federal prison here in company with Frank Gray, many months ago. He was recaptured the next day near Athens after being wounded. While confined in a hospital, there for treatment he made his second get away. Recently the police of England were asked to look for him. Gray also was recaptured near Athens and returned to the prison, where he is still held.

"BIRTHDAY GIFTS" TOTALING $100,000 GIVEN RABBI WISE

New York, March 16.—Tribute was paid to Rabbi Stephen S. Wise, president of the American Jewish congress and rabbi of the Free Synagogue of New York, with a public celebration of his fiftieth birthday at Carnegie hall today. Newton D. Baker, former secretary of war, was the principal speaker.

Two "birthday gifts," totaling $100,000, were made to Dr. Wise, one of $50,000 toward payment of the debt still owing on the synagogue house, and the other $50,000 for the endowment of the Stephen S. Wise professorship at the Jewish Institute of Religion, of which Dr. Wise is acting president. The gifts were made by members of his congregation.

REPARATION PLAN OF EXPERTS' BODY HAS BANK BASIS

International Bank To Stabilize Mark and Handle Reparations Payments Is Urged.

PEOPLE OF GERMANY MUST PAY SOME TAXES

Placing German Industries Under German Control Also Will Be Recommended in Report.

Paris, March 16.—The report of the first committee of experts under Brigadier General Charles G. Dawes, which is practically agreed upon by the experts, though the working out of some details and the drawing up of the text may require another week, is based on these fundamental findings.

1. The German people must pay as much in taxes as any of the people of the allied countries.
2. Germany must pay the maximum of her capacity in reparations.
3. The German economic machine must be free to function under German control, unhindered by any interference from the outside.

Minimum sums must be paid at once, or in the immediate future on reparations, these to be increased in proportion to the revival of Germany's prosperity and according to her economic conditions.

International Bank.

In order to put Germany in a position to carry out her part of the program which the report will suggest to the reparations commission on the basis of these general principles, the experts propose to set up an international bank, to have exclusive right to the issue of German currency on a gold basis. The bank plan provides for the cooperation of the allies and neutral nations with the Germans in supplying capital and in the management of the institution, which is to be located in some country neutral in the late war.

The capital of the bank remains to be fixed. Indications are that it will be in the neighborhood of $100,000,000, of which half will come from Germany and the remainder from abroad. Foreign subscribers to loans, to raise the necessary amount, or to the capital, if final arrangements so provide, will be secured by a lien on Germany's productive monopolies.

To Stabilize Mark.

The setting up of a bank of issue is expected not only to assure permanent stability of the mark, but to furnish a flexible medium through which reparations payments may be effected without resorting to the purchase of foreign money with marks, with the consequent risk of another depreciation in German money.

The reich is supposed under this plan to deposit in this bank the sums required to pay interest on loans and minimum reparations installments. The allies will be enabled to draw on the reparation fund proportionately to their percentages fixed at Spa. They may check out cash or draw checks payable to products imported from Germany on the reparation account.

BURGLARS LOOT ASHCRAFT HOME

Several Thousand Dollars' Worth of Jewelry Stolen Sunday Night While Family Was Absent.

The residence of Lee Ashcraft of 975 Ponce DeLeon Avenue was looted Sunday night and jewelry valued at several thousand dollars taken. The robbery occurred about 9 o'clock, while the family was absent.

Police say the burglars crashed a glass in the front door, manipulating the knob from the inside. The house was ransacked, but a quantity of valuable jewelry was all that was reported missing.

Mr. Ashcraft stated that he could not give an exact estimate of the loss.

Captain V. M. Wright, of the bureau of investigation, photographed finger prints left on the door and jewelry cases.

WHEELER TO SIFT FIGHT FILM DEAL FROM ALL ANGLES

Daugherty Prosecutor Announces He Will Clear All Details Before Making Digression.

CLAIMS OF "HEARSAY" ARE PIFFLE, HE SAYS

Senator Declares He Never Saw Clearer Case Against Official Than One Now Presented.

BY THOMAS L. STOKES.

Washington, March 16.—An effort to get the whole truth about the alleged "deal" for showing the Dempsey-Carpentier fight pictures in violation of the law, through sale of protection by a group close to Attorney General Daugherty—including Jess Smith, his friend and confidant—will be made this week by the special senate committee investigating the department of justice.

Senator Wheeler, of Montana, prosecutor in the investigation, announced Sunday that he will have subpoenas issued Monday for Tex Rickard, promoter of the fight; Jap Muma, New York representative of The Cincinnati Enquirer; E. B. McLean's paper, and William A. Orr, of New York, formerly private secretary to ex-Governor Whitman, of New York.

To Spring New Sensations.

Wheeler also announced that a new line of inquiry, hitherto untouched and which will bring a string of fresh sensations, will be opened this week, after the picture investigation and further examination of the story told by Gaston B. Means, former justice department agent, who testified he had paid Jess Smith $100,000 received from a Japanese representative of the Mitsui company, in which the Standard Aircraft corporation, which had a suit pending before the government that never has been prosecuted. He declined to indicate what was involved in the new line of investigation.

Wheeler Likes His Case.

Among the denials which have poured in from all sides as the investigation has proceeded, especially the statements by Daugherty, the Montana senator said that he expects during the next few days to bring out evidence which will directly involve the attorney general. He explained, however, that what has already developed has satisfied him, and that in his long experience as a prosecutor, he says never seen a clearer case against anybody than that which has been brought out against the attorney general.

The three men who will be subpoenaed Monday were named as partners in the picture deal by F. O. Quimby, producer of the films, who testified that he made around $125,000 through sale of rights in 22 or more states, and turned over between $60,000 and $65,000 to Muma. Quimby stated Muma represented himself as a close friend of Daugherty and said that Orr was a friend of Jess Smith.

Justice Report Is Found.

On Monday, the committee will examine the O. Holdbridge, of Baltimore, former agent of the department of justice. Part of a report said to have been made by Holdbridge to the department of justice, regarding an investigation of the deal and naming Muma and others, has been laid before the committee by Wheeler.

Wheeler said Sunday that he had attorney in New York, and Alfred L. Union, local lawyer, both of whom were mentioned by Quimby, might be called later, as well as the Martin, proprietor of an amusement park at Cincinnati, who was named as a partner with Muma and others.

Finish Film Probe

Wheeler said that he would finish the picture deal investigation before taking up other lines of inquiry and that hereafter he would pursue the policy of completing one line of investigation before proceeding to others. When this is concluded, he said, the aircraft transaction will be probed, after which he will take up the new line of inquiry. Both Means and Mrs. Roxie Stinson-Smith, former wife of Jess Smith, are to be called again, and it is thought the new evidence will be brought out partly by them.

"Of course, it's going to be hard to show anything directly against Daugherty," Wheeler said, discussing the case Sunday. "That is the way a man of his caliber works."

"But in all my experience as a prosecutor I've never presented a case to a jury that was more beautifully laid together than this one already," he said.

"Hearsay Talk Is 'Piffle'"
"All this rife about the evidence being hearsay is silly, nonsensical talk coming from somebody who doesn't know a thing about the evidence in law."

"Take, for instance, this aircraft case. The former wife of Jess Smith takes the stand and tells of Smith bringing 75 $1,000 bills to Columbus from Washington. She didn't know where they came from. She doesn't know Gaston Means, never saw him in her life."

"Then Means takes the stand and tells how he turned over a hundred $1,000 bills to Smith, from a representative of the Standard Aircrafts company. The government had a suit against this company. After four years it has never been prosecuted, and the lawyer in the case admits he dropped the suit. If that isn't clear evidence I've never seen it."

Speaking of reports from Tokio that records of the Standard Aircrafts company had been lost in the earthquake, Wheeler said "There will be a good many more good records lost in earthquakes and other ways before this investigation is over."

CHIVALRY IN POLITICS

URGED BY TUMULTY

Jersey City, N. J., March 16.—More than 1,000 persons, many of whom knew Woodrow Wilson during his life, attended Wilson memorial services here today at which Joseph P. Tumulty, the former president's secretary, was the principal speaker. Mr. Tumulty made a plea for "chivalry in politics," especially as it affects the offices of president of the United States. The president's office, he said, should be immune from efforts to drag it into political scandals and the president should not "be subject to harassing Woodrow Wilson was crucified by his critics," he said.

Huntsville, Ala., March 16.—(Special)—Arrested here after a long chase by the police on charges of speeding and transporting liquor in violation of the prohibition laws, George H. Vandiver, of Harrisonville, Ky., and Clifford Ackerman, of Bowling Green, Ky., tourists en route from Florida to their homes, were fined in the police court Friday. Vandiver paid $125 for transporting liquor and speeding and Ackerman paid $25 for speeding. Liquor was found in Vandiver's car, the police claim. The tourists paid promptly and were on their way home within an hour thereafter.

Atlanta Girl Will Sing

Prologue of Big Picture

One of the outstanding features in connection with the presentation at the Atlanta theater all this week, starting tonight, and thereafter twice daily of the Universal super-production of Victor Hugo's classic, "The Hunchback of Notre Dame," will be a vocal rendition of Gounod's "Ave Maria." Miss Lois Entreen, popular Atlanta girl, whose pleasing contralto voice has been heard frequently over the radio, and who is a member of Trinity church, will be the soloist during the Atlanta engagement of the stupendous production. Miss Entreen has been connected with the money order department of the Atlanta postoffice for the past few years and has a wide circle of admirers who never miss an opportunity of hearing her song numbers.

Another feature of the prologue, as given in the Atlanta theater at every performance during the engagement, will be a reproduction of the famous bells of the cathedral of Notre Dame, with the musical rendition interpreted by a special symphony orchestra of 20 pieces, under the direction of Vincent J. Collins.

"The Hunchback of Notre Dame" has been accorded signal honor and praise wherever it has been shown. Critics have hailed it as the greatest screen sensation of all time. It will be interesting to Atlanta theatergoers to note that the entire production was staged at Universal City, Cal., more than a year was consumed in its making, and that the outlay exceeded $1,500,000.

Lon Chaney, who portrays the title role, that of the deformed bell ringer, is said to do the greatest acting of his career.

The supporting cast includes a levy of screen favorites, among them Ernest Torrence, Patsy Ruth Miller, Norman Kerry, Tully Marshall, Brandon Hurst, Raymond Hatton, Winifred Brown, Nigel de Brulier, Kate Lester, Gladys Brockwell, Eulalie Jensen, and others.

MISS LOIS ENTREEN.

er, five per cent as the Germans demand, or five and a half per cent as a compromise. It is hoped that the interest payments on these mortgage bonds would make them negotiable, enabling France, for instance, to realize something on them and relieve her financial stress.

Suggest Balanced Budget

The experts make suggestions as to balancing the German budget during the five ensuing years. They will probably dodge the allied plan for continual control of German finances, believing that once the reparations commission and the allies have made known the terms of the final settlement and Germany has accepted them, it becomes a simple question as to whether the Germans are determined to carry out the agreement, and continual control would be ineffectual to change matters.

The report will also be silent on the thorny question of a reduction of German reparations obligations. Experts hold that all the Germans need to know is how much they are required to pay in taxes. If they are able to bear the burden and at the same time produce a surplus and at the same time pay off their country's debt. The committee regards this action as settled by the article of treaty of Versailles which requires the Germans to pay as much tax as the people in any allied country. It is doubtful if the word moratorium, the object of which is attained, thought, in establishing a sliding scale for minimum payments, in which many's present prospective capacity for payments is duly taken into account.

DARDEN IS FOUND

BY SENATE AGENT

Washington, March 16.—Process servers of the senate finally have located James G. Darden, formerly of New York and Washington, who has been sought by both the oil and Daugherty committees.

A subpoena for Mr. Darden—"Colonel" Darden as he is known in Washington—was issued a month ago by the oil committee which desires to question him in connection with a claim he tried to enforce in Teapot Dome.

Evidence before the committee is that Darden sought the aid of Attorney General Daugherty in pressing his claim before the interior department. Albert B. Fall, as secretary of the interior, refused to recognize his right in the naval oil reserve and in agreement with President Harding had the navy department send marines to the Wyoming field to remove the Mutual Oil company, through which Darden was undertaking to drill an oil well.

Roxie Stinson has testified before the Daugherty committee that Jess Smith told her he and Attorney General Daugherty had given Darden $2,400 each for investment in an oil proposition in the west. She said she had been told Darden had been trying for some years to get leases in Washington.

Neither the oil nor the Daugherty committee has determined when Darden will be called. The oil committee, which has been in recess because of the illness of Senator Walsh, of Montana, will resume its public hearings next Tuesday.

Louis D. Bond, an expert accountant of the federal trade commission, who has examined the books of brokerage firms in Washington, New York and Cleveland, will be the first witness called. Senator Walsh said tonight the committee will go into the story of Leonard Wood, Jr., about attempted "oil deals" at the republican convention in Chicago in 1920.

An instance of the special importance to the farmer lies in sisal for binder twine, where although present prices are possibly not extortionate, yet a few years ago they were deliberately advanced 300 per cent, and during the period fully $100,000,000 of excess profits was

For Tax Collector and the Winning Ticket

Vote this ticket and end the fee system.

I agree to serve for a salary of $7,500.00 per year, and to turn the excess of the office over to the county or deposit it in a bank to the county's credit for the benefit of the taxpayers.

My back record shows the sincerity of my intentions to save the taxpayers. Even before I aspired to the Tax Collector's office I served as a member of two grand juries which stood for the abolishment of the unfair fee system and was a member of the grand jury committee which prepared the bill, to abolish fees. This bill was pigeon-holed in the legislature through the lobbying activities of certain present officeholders who thought more of their fees than of the public interest.

Many thanks for your endorsement and vote of March 19th

BASE FOR ACTION ON TAX MEASURE SOUGHT BY SENATE

Washington, March 16.—The senate finance committee will resume examination of treasury officials tomorrow with a view to determining the exact amount of revenue which must be raised by the new tax bill. It is not likely, Chairman Smoot said today, that actual work on the measure will be taken before the latter part of the week.

Meantime, a vote on the bonus bill is scheduled for Tuesday in the house and if passed this measure will be in the hands of the finance committee also. A move to place it ahead of the tax bill would be in order, Chairman Smoot said today, and decision would rest with the committee.

THOS. C. MILLER
For Clerk Superior Court

Lawyers who Specialize in Real Estate Titles, Protest Against Removal of Trained Employees in the Clerk's Office.

To the Citizens of Fulton County:

If you were running a bank or a railroad, and had a good force of employees, well-trained and hard-working, would you, without any cause, discharge them all, over night, and employ a green, untrained and untried crew, simply because they wanted your jobs?

Yet the Office of the Clerk of the Superior Court of Fulton County is more important than either of these. It is involved with all the technicalities of law. Land records, property records and Court records involving Hundreds of Millions of dollars' worth of property are kept in this office by specially trained experts, whose places could not be filled by unskilled substitutes, except at an appalling risk to property owners. One small error in indexing—a fine science in this office—might easily cost a man his home, and this is only a small part of the work of the office.

There is no more important office in Fulton County than this. Civil Service, rather than politics, should control it. Can you afford to take a chance?

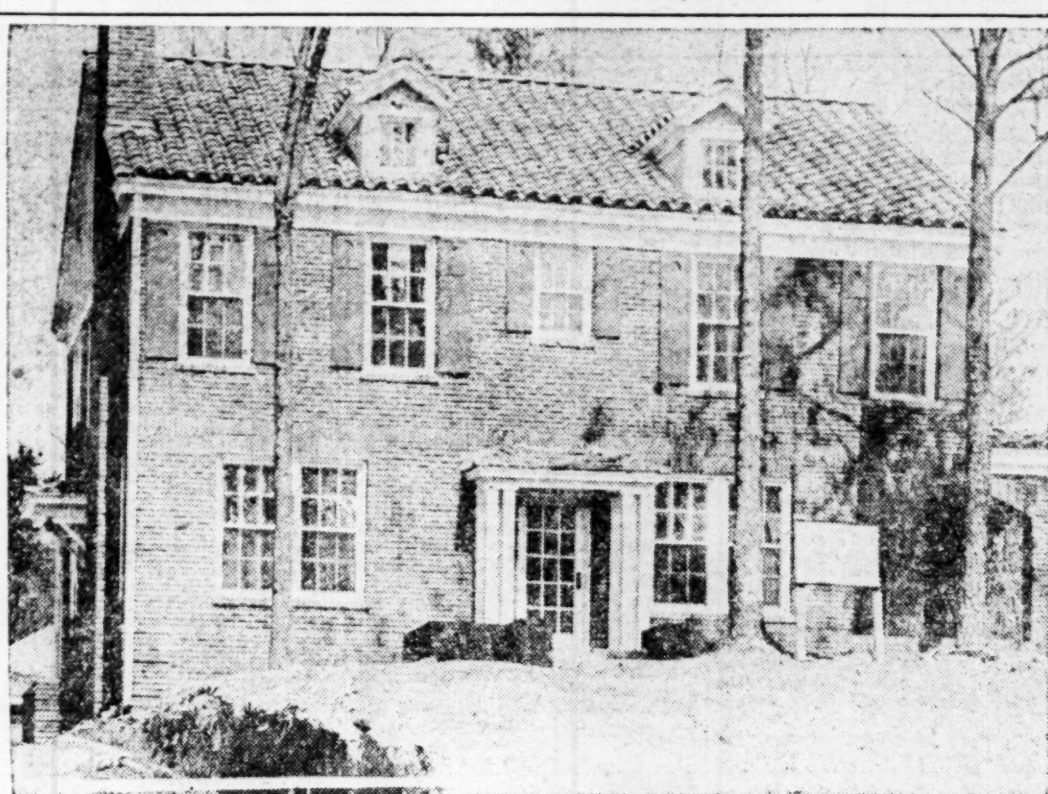

This Committee of Lawyers, who understand the complications daily coming up in this office, believe you will agree with us that the election of MR. THOMAS C. MILLER, the present Chief Deputy in the Office of the Clerk of the Superior Court, with his trained force of workers, is more vitally important to the Citizens of this County, than it is to Mr. Miller.

We ask you to give this special thought when you cast your ballot.

avoid a collision with Pittman's car, the machine in which, Mrs. Garvin and Mrs. Hartman were riding struck the front end of the Deatur car.

On Way to Church.
Mrs. Garvin is a teacher in the Sunday school of the Inman Park Baptist church. She had just finished her class and she and Mrs. Hartman were en route to the First Baptist church at the time of the wreck.

Mrs. H. H. Henry and Miss Margaret Henry, of 307 Hill street, were severely cut by flying glass in a collision between the car Miss Henry was driving and one driven by Joe Lazar, 835 Piedmont avenue, Sunday morning.

The accident took place at Glenn and Pulliam streets. Lazar, who escaped unhurt, was charged with reckless driving by Officers Paul V. West and A. B. Roberts.

When the wagon on which they were riding was struck by an unidentified driver of an automobile which they claim was traveling at high speed, W. R. Fuller, who lives on a rural route, and M. A. Keith, of 3 McMillan street, were badly bruised and shaken up when thrown to the pavement in Peachtree road Sunday morning.

The license number of the machine that injured them was furnished to the police, and a request made that the driver be arrested. It is claimed he did not stop after striking the wagon.

SLAYER OF MATE AND SON KILLED

In a curve in the hallway and opened fire. The sheriff declared Van Gordon fired twice. Then the sheriff killed him, three shots taking effect. Van Gordon lived ten minutes.

The automobile belonging to Van Gordon was found in a Douglas garage. The rear seat was blood-stained.

The body of Mrs. Van Gordon, recovered from the stream, was fully clothed. She was garbed in a party dress, the same one she had worn to an afternoon church function here yesterday. Police believe she was shot to death by her husband as soon as she drove the car into the garage of her home.

Boy Killed First.
Evidence gathered by the sheriff indicated that the boy was killed when Van Gordon returned for dinner and before the arrival of Mrs. Van Gordon.

According to officials Van Gordon, who was a former member of the Casper city council, was in financial straits. Officials declare he had forged the name of R. J. Fuchs, a business man here, on notes amounting to $6,100. The Thomas Daly Insurance company, of Denver, sent an agent here last week to investigate Van Gordon in connection with an accounting for $2,500 due from insurance policies handled for that company by Van Gordon. Friends believe that worry over financial trouble caused Van Gordon's action.

A special delivery letter to Attorney W. B. Cobb, a personal friend, about 7 o'clock last night gave the first clue to the police that something was wrong. In this Van Gordon said, "Can't stand the game any longer. Please settle my affairs the best you can."

Cobb notified the police, who made an examination of the Van Gordon home. The Van Gordon watch dog was found slain near the house but the first investigation did not reveal anything indicating murder. About midnight after a search in Casper failed to locate the Van Gordons police entered the home and discovered evidence of the crime. Police then began a search of the roads between here and Douglas.

Van Gordon had been a resident of Casper for seven years.

COOLIDGE PLACED ON HONORARY LIST OF PHILHARMONIC

silk voile on which will be applied baskets of flowers cut from hand blocked linen. The furniture is decorated in colors to harmonize with the curtains.

The master's bed room will be furnished with twin beds, dressing table, dresser with hanging mirror, chest of drawers, and comfortable boudoir chairs. The draperies are made of violet silk, floor length, with valance and its backs of striped silk in changeable colors. Bed spread and made of the same materials used in the draperies. Another bedroom is being furnished with particular emphasis as a debutante's room and will be made as dainty as the most fastidious miss could wish. Its draperies are made of apple-green French voile, all fluffy and "ruffy." The bed spread will be made of same material used in the draperies. The furniture is a painted suit with a hint of the drapery colors in its decorations. The guest room draperies are in French colors of rose and blue, made floor length, and finished with tiny ruffles. The furniture selected is suitable and appropriate to a room used for this purpose.

Fitted Out As Nursery.
The other room of this floor will be fitted out as a nursery, and the windows will be very unusual in the scheme worked out. Shades made to roll from the bottom of the windows will be made of nursery cloth and covered with dainty ruffled curtains tied back with bands of nursery cloth. A valance of the same material will go across the top of the windows. The kitchen floor will be covered with blue and white tiled linoleum, and the windows will be hung with crisp white curtains, overdraped with French gingham in colors to harmonize with the linoleum and walls. The furnishings will include a "Frigidaire" refrigerator, and electric range, electric dishwashing machine, built in ironing board, with electric outlet for electric iron, porcelain table and white chairs decorated in blue. The pantry will be filled with foods of all kinds.

The Better Homes exhibit is being sponsored by The Constitution in cooperation with a number of the leading business firms of the city. It is planned to be an educational exhibit for the betterment of homes in Atlanta.

The public is urged to take advantage of the opportunity offered them in this exhibit to study how a home can be beautified, without an extravagant outlay of money. Every suggestion shown will be applicable to your own home, whether a new one, or one you have occupied for years. The houses will be open every

COUNTRY BANKERS MEET MARCH 25

Announcement that the eighth annual convention of the Country Bankers' association of Georgia will be held at Macon and Fort Valley on March 25, 26 and 27 has just been made by L. R. Adams, secretary-treasurer of the organization.

For the first two days of the convention, headquarters will be in the Hotel Dempsey, but on the third day, March 27, the entire gathering will go to Fort Valley to attend the famous annual Peach Blossom Festival at that place.

The business program this year has, stated Mr. Adams, been arranged with the idea of making it strictly a "home-sweet-home" affair. Every speaker on the program is a Georgian, either by birth or by present residence and the subjects for discussion will be entirely confined to matters of practical interest to Georgia country bankers.

Annual Dinner.

The annual dinner, with short addresses and music and special entertainment features will be held at the Hotel Dempsey at 7:30 o'clock on Tuesday, the opening day. Guest-brokers, orchestra, members of the Wesleyan College Glee club, and other entertainers have been engaged to provide the entertainment features.

Wednesday, the second day, will continue the business sessions and open discussions scheduled for Tuesday afternoon, Wednesday morning and afternoon. Among the topics to be discussed by able Georgian speakers are: "What the Future Holds for Country Bankers," "Need for Closer Cooperation Among Country Bankers," "Government Competition for Bank Deposits," "Repealing the Vacant Farms of Georgia," "Cooperative Marketing of Peaches," "Relationship of Country Banker and Farmer Under 1924 Conditions," "Mr. Farmer Partners," "Handling 1920 Debts," "Public Health as a Business Concern," "A School of Country Banking," "Credit Investigation and Analysis," "Accounting Practice," "Analysis of Country Bank Accounts," "Legal Points," "Collections and the Handling of Collaterals and Securities," "How Can a Bank Make More Money?" etc.

In addition to the programmed subjects, there will be a question box in which questions may be put and, when opened, they will be freely discussed in open meeting.

Dinner at Macon.

On Wednesday night a dinner will be tendered the convention by the banks of the Macon Clearing House association. Place and details of this dinner will be announced during the convention.

Mr. Adams Saturday stressed the fact that this convention is not confined exclusively to members of the Country Bankers' association. "Any banker is welcome," he said. "Macon is easily accessible to all parts of Georgia and has splendid hotel accommodations. We will welcome any banker who cares to attend the gathering. The primary object of our organization is to serve the bankers, especially the country bankers, and we want to do this regardless of the individual's membership with us. Of course," he added, "size does not make a convention successful and useful, but no matter how good it is, the bigger the attendance the more benefit that good is going to be to the people for whom it is intended."

Mr. Adams then added the information that ladies were welcome at all sessions and that special entertainment features had been provided for them, regardless of whether their husbands attended the business meetings, played golf or went to the movies.

FIRST of all, make sure your roof is going to stand the heat and cold, the wind, the rain, the snow. The first requirement of a roof is that it protect your house — and it cannot do this if it curls, and cracks.

Therefore, before you think of any other quality, get a shingle that does not curl. This means that you must specify the Carey Asphaltslate Shingle, the shingle that does not curl, because it is the superior shingle made by the Carey process.

Isn't the whole success of your roof important enough to justify your demanding this better shingle?

Carey Asphaltslate Shingles come in three colors, Blue-black, also Red and Green.

Carey Ready Roofings, Wallboard and Shingles are on sale at Lumber and Building Supply Dealers. Ask your dealer first, if he cannot supply you, write or phone us.

Atlanta Leads U. S. In Beautiful Homes Says F.D.E. Babcock

There are more beautiful homes in Atlanta than in any city of its size in the United States. The opinion of F. D. E. Babcock, eastern division manager of the National Chamber of Commerce, following a tour of the city Saturday afternoon with local chamber of commerce officials, Mr. Babcock, who is visiting members of the national organization in the Atlanta coast states, arrived in Atlanta Saturday.

"I don't believe I have ever seen so many beautiful homes in one city in all my life," Mr. Babcock said. "The particular beauty of the residential section is that none of the homes are alike. For some happy reason the builders make them all different—so unlike the 'factory-row' sections of other large cities."

In speaking of the National Chamber of Commerce, Mr. Babcock said that it was organized in 1912, and has steadily grown to a membership of more than 750,000 commercial and trade organizations. The purpose of the organization at Washington is to obtain the intelligent opinion of all sections of the United States in order that it may be presented to federal authorities, congress or whatever body is concerned.

The budget system, now used by

HENRY HYERS, FORMER GEORGIA SOLON, DIES

Henry Hyers 74, of 139 East North avenue, died Sunday afternoon at his residence. Mr. Hyers, who had resided in Atlanta for the past five years, is well known in Georgia. He served two terms in the state legislature, first representing Pierce county and in 1919 and 1920, Lumpkin county.

Before coming to Atlanta in 1919, Mr. Hyers was a merchant in Petersburg, Ga., where funeral services will take place at 3 o'clock Tuesday afternoon at the Baptist church.

He is survived by his widow, one daughter, Miss Willie Hyers; two sisters, Mrs. W. M. Hyers, of Patterson, Ga., and Mrs. Jordan, of Blacksburg, Ga.

GRAGG LUMBER MILLS ARE MOVED TO DUBLIN

Sparta, Ga., March 16.—(Special.) The Gragg Lumber company, which has operated extensively in this county for the past several years, has sold to their remaining holdings, and moved to Dublin. It has sufficient timber in this section to run its mills for some time. The planer at Clayton, in this county has been closed for some time.

Edmondson Attack On McAdoo Scored By Watson Friend

Grover Cleveland Edmondson's editorial attack on William G. McAdoo, candidate for the democratic nomination for the presidency, appearing in the last issue of the Columbia Sentinel, is denounced by William G. McAdoo in a statement made public Sunday by Georgia McAdoo headquarters.

McAdoo is a young lawyer and World was veteran of Rockmart, McAdoo headquarters points out that he was known for years as a warm friend and supporter of the late Senator Thomas E. Watson, and seconded his nomination at the 1920 convention in Macon. McAdoo, it is announced, will speak for McAdoo at Dublin on Tuesday morning and at Savannah Tuesday night.

McAdoo asserts that Edmondson has not the slightest right to "speak for Senator Watson" and to give advice to the dead senator's friends as to how they shall vote in this important election. Edmondson, he says, was repudiated by Watson only a few months before he died.

McAdoo's Statement

The statement by McAdoo follows: As a real friend of the late Senator Thomas E. Watson, who had the honor of securing his nomination for the senate in 1920 I am distressed by the effrontery of this renegade, who had no standing with Senator Watson when the senator died, and who is entitled to no standing with the friends of Senator Watson, for the purpose of attacking William G. McAdoo on the eve of the presidential primary in Georgia. He pretends to speak for Senator Watson and to give advice to the dead senator's friends as to how they shall vote in this important election.

Senator Watson's last word concerning

Edmondson appeared in the Columbia Sentinel on May 29, 1922, a few months before he died. In that statement the senator repudiated Edmondson in the following language: "Grover Edmondson made it absolutely impossible for me to longer remain silent. He has represented himself as still being connected with me and the Sentinel. Since March 1 he has not in any way been connected with me, or the paper, and he has no authority to speak for either."

What was Edmondson's reply to this repudiation? In various editorials, Edmondson made the following, contemptible fling at the man who had fed him when he was caged, and put up with him who he was drunk until he could put up with him no longer: "The people of Georgia know that my loyalty to Senator Watson entitled me to a better deal than I received in the current issue of his newspaper, but it is nothing unusual for the senator to repudiate his friends."

Senator Watson's last published utterance in regard to Edmondson was a complete repudiation of him; while Edmondson's last published utterance in regard to the senator during a life was this: "I am a friend of the people, and because in my judgment he is the ablest leader the democrats can name to win the presidency and restore honest government in the interests of the people."

I am reliably informed and believe that Edmondson offered for a financial consideration to revive the Columbia Sentinel and publish an editorial praising McAdoo, and that McAdoo campaign headquarters flatteringly turned him down because they were not willing to insult the friends of the late Senator Watson by going before them with any statement over Edmondson's signature. A few days later, Edmondson appeared in the Sentinel with an editorial attacking McAdoo and praising Underwood. The friends of Senator Watson can draw their own conclusions as to the high and patriotic motives which prompted Edmondson to give them this advice.

Personally, I do believe there is one person who will pay attention to Edmondson's advice, and that is the man who there was no dependence to be put in him, and issued a statement to that effect a short while before he died. I think Senator Watson would turn over in his grave if he knew that in a Georgia newspaper the name of his newspaper around any political headquarters where he believes it can be so used.

WILLIAM G. McADOO.

much action as the incident Underwood ever has—and he liked his votes when big business came to the favor."

"Never Double-Crossed Him."

I was a friend and supporter of Senator Watson, but unlike Edmondson I never did anything to embarrass him. I never double-crossed him, and was never repudiated by him. I am going to vote for McAdoo in the primary next Wednesday because he has demonstrated by his record in public life that he is a genuine friend of the masses of the people, and because in my judgment he is the ablest leader the democrats can name to win the presidency and restore honest government in the interests of the people.

I am reliably informed and believe that Edmondson offered for a financial consideration to revive the Columbia Sentinel and publish an editorial praising McAdoo, and that McAdoo campaign headquarters flatteringly turned him down because they were not willing to insult the friends of the late Senator Watson by going before them with any statement over Edmondson's signature. ## MADISON COUNTY BOYS STUDY FARM OUTLOOK

Huntsville, Ala., March 16.—(Special.) Boys' clubs to study cotton planting, cultivation, and boll weevil control are being organized in many of the rural precincts of Madison county by C. P. Striplin, county agricultural agent. There are large clubs already under way in several of the precincts and there is little doubt but that the training will be of great benefit to the boys, as well as their fathers.

Atlanta Firm Building Big Plant in Jacksonville, Fla.

Mr. J. O. Cheek, president of the Cheek-Neal Coffee company, manufacturer of the well-known Maxwell House coffee, has awarded contract to the Turner Construction company of Atlanta, for the construction of a new factory building on East Bay street, Jacksonville, near the present Cheek-Neal plant.

In the new building will be incorporated all of the most modern methods in coffee roasting, handling, packing and shipping, so that when the new building is completed, it will represent a model plant.

The building itself will be 150x100 feet, 5 stories in height, built entirely of reinforced concrete, founded on yellow pine piles driven to bed rock. Ornamental brick spandrel walls and rolled steel sash with wire glass will be used throughout, except in the office portion of the building. Two high-speed freight elevators will be installed for handling bulk materials and the service of these will be supplemented by two spiral chutes

BERTRAM NIEHOFF'S ARMY SPENDS A PEACEFUL SUNDAY

Coach Stanley Robinson Will Start the Workouts With 35 Young Aspirants

At 10 o'clock on Sunday morning, Coach Stanley Robinson will start the workouts of the 35 young aspirants of the Atlanta Athletic Club. The workouts will be held at the club's training camp here today.

Among these are Woody, Dantzler and Ward on the line and a hard plunger seems to have come to light in Mellos from the class players, who lists in the backfield. Another promising discovery is in Moncrief, also a backfield candidate.

Practically all the freshman grid-dists have enrolled for the spring practice. Tipton, Glover, Dunn, Smith, Grant and Towler, of these are thought to be coming variety performers.

Those of the old men who are to get back into the game are Young, Sammons, Felder, Coker, Cecil, Rice, Lanning, Browning, Jowers, Melton, and Carson, Roberts and Bates. Others are under the tutelage of Coach E. P. Mosley, baseball mentor.

ROWNELL, HALL AND MICHER EEM OLYMPIC CERTAINTIES

Chicago, March 16.—Sensational news has been made in the eastern conference here Saturday night when the Olympic teams, as declared.

Rownell, of the University of Illinois, has been named as the American representative in the 1500-meter race. He is a sophomore and has won the 1500-meter race at the University of Illinois in 1925.

Another conference record was broken by Eddie Micher, the Illinois distance runner, who made the two-mile in 9:41. The old record was 9:41.45 made last year by Russell Wharton, which makes Micher an Olympic possibility.

AY SETS HEART ON BATTLE WITH NURMI, FLEET FINN

New York, March 16.—Jole W. Ayer, who has set his heart on a battle for Olympic supremacy in the 1500-meter race, has been named as the American representative in the 1500-meter race. He is a sophomore and has won the 1500-meter race at the University of Illinois in 1925.

ornell Wins Championship

New York, March 16.—For the first time in a decade the intercollegiate basketball championship flag has been won by Cornell University. The team, coached by Dr. J. M. H. Smith, defeated the Princeton Tigers in the final game of the tournament.

Macdonald Starts Its Training

Macdonald, Ga., March 16.—Seventeen athletes for the Macdonald South Atlantic League basketball team were expected to arrive in the city today to begin their training.

Old Engine Is Fastest.

Much progress has been made in the construction of the new engine in the last 30 days, and yet a locomotive that was built in 1903 holds the record—112 1/2 miles an hour.

A PIECE FOR THE PAPER

Ever Talk About the Weather? If the weather man isn't just a-joking with us, a passing glance at yesterday would seem to indicate that the sport world can now turn its attention to getting under way, after a brief postponement of regular activity—while everybody, not understanding the peculiar behavior of the elements, stood still, looked wild-eyed and made funny cracks about snowballs.

One place where the reformation of Fluvius will be looked upon with sincere approval is in Griffin, where it is just about time for Sir Bertram to begin the carving process on his brigade. No matter how eagle-like the eye of Atlanta's dauntless new leader, he will be able to judge his prospective charges much better when they are illumined by a warmer sun. A return to normal weather will be fairer to all concerned—especially to Atlanta fans—expecting a pennant-winning outfit, or at least a one-two-three aggregation.

Of course, there are some hundreds on hundreds who have been laying lavish and choice anathema hard by the office of the weather man, because the behavior of the skies and contents hasn't been anywhere near decent for a man who would much prefer to begin the carving process on his brigade.

Then there's that little matter of golf. The Atlanta Women's Golf association, for instance, has been trying its level best to get a fine spring and summer schedule under way for several days, only to be foiled at every turn by the unseasonable complexion of the weather. Let us hope that's all over and that the flag tournament at Druid Hills today will let them get off in fine style to a glorious season. There are several other tournaments of varying natures to follow. With more than a hundred in Atlanta's golfing population.

A busted rib and a gentleman. He slips up on you, kind of easy-like and leaves you wondering what made him do like that in the first place. You list the possibilities in tabulated order, giving all the possible reasons why, and then you haven't gotten anywhere:

1. Laughing at Doc Gable's jokes in Griffin last week.
2. Inhaling excess air in producing ooh's and ah's of astonishment at Dave Bussey's feats of legerdemain.
3. Strain from teaching for one of O. B. Keeler's roundhouse curbs at Southside park, Griffin.
4. Surprise at learning that the Prince of Wales had actually fallen from a horse.
5. Falling over a bench and receiving a corner of it just above the belt.

MIAMI ONE MUNICIPALITY WITH A SPORT DEPARTMENT

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.
(United Press Staff Correspondent.)
Sarasota, Fla., March 16.—Here is a town with a sport department. Miami, Fla., was very much put out when the adjacent city of Palm Beach by brilliant inspiration or lucky accident, came in for all that advertising through the popularity of that Palm Beach suit. Every time anyone everywhere mentioned a certain sunny sort of suit for men, Palm Beach received a free ad. This year, the Miami Chamber of Commerce took stock of the town's publicity possibilities and decided to exploit sport.

DAVIS CUP DRAWINGS TODAY

Washington, March 16.—Drawings for the international tennis matches for the Davis cup, in which a score of nations will compete, will be held tomorrow at the White House and President Coolidge will draw the first names. It will be the first time in the history of the famous matches that the drawings have been held at the White House.

Arrangements for the drawings were announced today through Dwight F. Davis, donor of the cup and assistant secretary of war, and a number of ministers of the various nations that have entered will draw for their respective countries. Sir Esme Howard, the British ambassador, will draw for Ireland, Australia, the British Isles and Canada. The Swiss, Czechoslovakian, Netherlands, Rumanian, Chinese, French, Spanish, Japanese, Italian, Danish, Belgian, Cuban and Mexican ranking diplomatic representatives here will each draw one name.

Officials of the United States Lawn Tennis Association and former members of the U. S. Davis cup teams have been invited to witness the drawings.

Memphis Chicks Get Keystone

Memphis, Tenn., March 16.—W. I. He will take the place of Roy Massey, who has announced his retirement from the game.

Weather Looks Propitious For the Approaching Week In Camp of the Crackers

Griffin, Ga., March 16.—(Special.) A deep and peaceful quietude hovered for a while then sat snug upon the Crackers' training camp here today. Many of the players—in fact, most of them—attended religious services in one of the city's churches during the morning, and in the afternoon there was a more or less general heging toward the edge of town, where the country club golf links stretch and wind nine attractive holes over a large portion of Spalding county.

Procy Jack Corbett rolled into town Sunday morning, having motored the thirty-nine miles to look over the camp in repose and to have many quietly spoken words with Commander Bert Niehoff about the prospects for a ball club that will knock the Southern loop for a well-defined goal during the months that will fill the time 'twixt now and next December.

Much Golf. Corbett was one of those who finally hearkened to the seductive chirp of the birds, and accompanied by his golf clubs and Niehoff, stepped on the gas again and rubber-tired out to the golf course.

Edna Beck, in a defiant reality combining the hardihood of hunting attire and the dazzy effect of golf habitations, was seen swinging out toward the links, evidently prepared to stalk the elusive par to its nest, and retreat not one step if a nibble advanced on him with jaws agape and prehensile paws outstretched.

WOMEN'S POSTPONED TOURNEY WILL GET UNDER WAY TODAY

After an entire week of disappointment, brought about by more varieties of weather than you could shake the well-known stick at—the flag tournament of the Atlanta Women's Golf association, at Druid Hills Golf club, will get under way this morning, according to the most recent announcement.

That is—if the weather Monday behaves even half-way so well as it did Sunday.

THREE "PARDONED" ROBINS MAY TREK TO NASHVILLE

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.
(United Press Staff Correspondent.)
Clearwater, Fla., March 16.—Three young men serving indeterminate sentences with the Brooklyn Dodgers, who are confined to the cell in the next few days, thanks to the clemency of Charlie Ebbetts, and to begin their careers anew with the past put out of their lives.

The board of pardons, consisting of Mr. Ebbetts and Uncle Walter Robinson, who is also head ear of the Dodgers, is considering the cases of several young men and it is not unlikely that quite a few more will be liberated in the approximate future, in consideration of their extreme youth and inexperience.

The three whose dismissal from the Dodgers has already been decided upon are Bert Griffith, the outfielder, and Harry Shriver and Roy Gordon, right hand pitchers. In conformity with the custom of placing every man in the New York Giants to an appropriate place while he negotiates to obtain places for them with the Nashville club.

Married Men Trusties. The main group of the Dodgers are confined in a cold-water hotel where they feel even less at ease than in the cell. ## Sisler in Game First Since '22

Mobile, Ala., March 16.—Manager George Sisler, of the St. Louis Browns, played his first game since October 1922, today, an exhibition affair against the Mobile Southern association team, covering first base for seven innings. Sisler fielded brilliantly and was robbed of two chances to make spectacular catches of foul balls by interference from Me-Manus who worked at second base. Sisler was up four times and his choice, a strikeout, a fly to left field and an infield out. The former premier first sacker of the majors took things easily, not exerting himself.

Lacy Opposes Paddock's Case

St. Louis Mo., March 16.—Vernor C. Lacy, president of the western division of the Amateur Athletic Union of America, who last night made public a letter to William H. Proust, president of the A. U. in which he voted against the reinstatement of Charles Paddock, sprinter, suspended for violation of the rules, declined tonight to comment further.

Lacy reiterated his statement, giving as his reasons for his negative vote the failure of Paddock to disprove any of the charges against him. According to a telegram received from Proust, four other members of a special committee had voted for the reinstatement, and a unanimous vote was asked.

The specifications against Paddock as contained in a letter from Proust include:

Paddock's failure to file an itemized account of his receipts and expenditures; infraction of the rule of the International Federation which provides no expense money to an athlete but to the federation of the athlete's country; Paddock's failure to return money borrowed from the American Olympic committee; failure to account for receiving double expense money in traveling from New York to Los Angeles and statements made by Paddock regarding A. U. officials and athletes as published.

Wooden Wives

—By Laura Jean Libbey—

The sudden and unexpected proposal of marriage from a man whom she had scarcely given a second thought to, fairly took her breath away; she saw that he was deeply vitiated, meaning every word he had uttered.

"I know this is very sudden," he said, "and I do not expect you will give me any answer here and now—that would be asking too much. Will you take a few days to consider it?"

She covered her face with her hands. He knew she was weeping. He could see the tears trickling through the white fingers. "In two days I shall come for my answer; should it be ready before that time, you know where to find me. I am leaving you, dearest of women, with a heart full of hope."

With these words he was gone, leaving Pauline so stunned with astonishment she hardly knew if she had heard aright.

He looked in at the boy, as he went, declaring to grandma, "he was fine and fit now, to get into the sunbath," a decision which caused the lad the greatest of joy, but getting his mother's permission, grandma buttoned him into his warmest little jacket, despite the fact that the day was mild, and sent him down to the street—admonishing him, however, that he must not go far away from the door.

Once out in the sunshine again the boy fell to thinking of his father, wondering if he would pass. There was a longing in his little heart to see him—look up into his kindly face, feel the touch of his strong, but gentle hands. Suddenly a fear seized him. Daddy had spoken of going away—leaving the city and going back to his home, had he gone with out coming to say good-bye to him? Would the long years come and go—and he would never see him again? Great tears blinded little Paul's eyes at the thought.

"I wouldn't want to get well and live—if I were never to see daddy again," he sobbed, sighs welling up from the depths of his sore, troubled little heart.

At that self-same moment Marcelle was standing at her window in the hotel, looking moodily out at the sunshine. She had not heard him mention one word since, concerning the adoption papers, but she knew from his happy manner everything must be progressing favorably.

"That boy has come between Daniel and me," she ruminated. "I wonder if there is yet time to formulate some plan to prevent it."

Standing there, a daring thought came to her.

"I wonder if it could be carried out?" she breathed.

Her thoughts were interrupted at that moment by the entrance of a maid with fresh towels. Marcelle called to her.

"Do you know where Crow's aller is?" she inquired.

"Oh, yes—the girl knew—it was some blocks away, near the water front."

"I suppose it is inhabited by very rough people," commented Marcelle.

"No, lady, I can't say that," replied the girl. "Mostly it's poor people who live in those tenements; poor, but honest—it gets its queer reputation on account of its name."

"You probably know some of the people living there?" ventured Marcelle.

"Yes, a few of them," she answered. "An old Irish player whom, they said, had been famous when he was in his prime, but now—no one wanted him, and he could scarcely find enough to keep body and soul together; he would accept no aid, though they did say many a day he was hungry."

Marcelle had not been listening. She had not heard a word. Her attention was instantly arrested, when, among others the maid mentioned knowing a poor family on the ten floor—a poor old lace mender and her daughter and grandson.

"The daughter is a perfect lady," went on the girl, adding, "and she is as pretty as she is good; her little boy, a cross-sweep, who sells papers at odd times, is just the cutest, finest looking youngster you ever saw. They do say, a very rich gentleman who is stopping at this hotel is greatly taken with him. Wouldn't it be strange—and romantic, ma'am, if the rich gent and the lace mender's daughter should meet, fall in love with each other—and marry?"

Marcelle paled to the lips in spite of her rouge. How strange that this main—should put into words—the very thought that had been troubling her all day.

The girl noted she was interesting the lady, and went on: "The little boy's mother mends for this hotel. She has been doing some lace pieces which the housekeeper is anxiously waiting for. She has been ill, but is working away on them again—she will fetch them here—tonight."

Marcelle bent forward listening intently; her lips parted, a smoldering gleam in her black eyes.

"Will you tell the housekeeper that I should like to see this young woman when she comes here tonight?"

"Certainly—I'll gladly tell her, ma'am, the poor son would be glad to get that work, I'm sure."

"You must not forget," said Marcelle, slipping a bill into the maid's hand.

"I will bring her to your apartment myself, ma'am," she replied.

Left to herself, Marcelle sat down and began to formulate a plan to outwit Daniel Westlow in his intention to adopt this strange young woman's boy.

Marcelle had wealth a plenty at her command—the Rae millions—and she told herself money could accomplish anything—everything.

She would give the young woman to understand, by insinuation, if not in words, that the man who desired to take her little son from her, was a most desperate character—all that was bad and vicious together; that his wealth was a myth, and, under his merciless brutality, the boy would not live a year. With such a picture before her, no woman would sign an adoption paper.

Should the woman show keen disappointment at the turn of her hopes? Marcelle intended to show great sympathy for her, and propose to become her benefactor herself—if she, the old grandma, and the boy would leave San Francisco without an hour's delay.

A goodly sum of ready cash, which she had about her, would cause her to accept. She would buy tickets for the trio to Chicago. She did not care what they did, or what because of them—if that distance divided them.

Counting her cash, she found that she had a little over a thousand dollars about her. She would give them the entire amount, considering herself lucky if she got off that cheap.

Marcelle looked so bright and gay when Daniel met her at dinner that he looked at her in wonder. Her smile was sparkling, her laughter contagious and her merry wit spontaneous.

Daniel was not in love with Marcelle, but as he looked at her, he could not help but note she was an unusually attractive young woman—whom most any man would be proud of.

He wished for her sake, that she could have more affection for her—or, that she had elected to marry some other man who would be more suitable for her.

She surprised him when she asked him if he would like to hear the concert which was to be given in the parlor that evening.

She was obliged to decline, though she would have given the world to have sat by his side the entire evening, but the matter on hand was of more important and urgent importance for her in her future.

The boy's love for Daniel, and his affection for the lad, were thorns in her heart—it belated her, in spite of anything else—to get the boy out of the way.

After they had disappeared, let Daniel rate and storm as much as he liked, it would not amend matters for him. He would not be able, in all probability to trace their whereabouts.

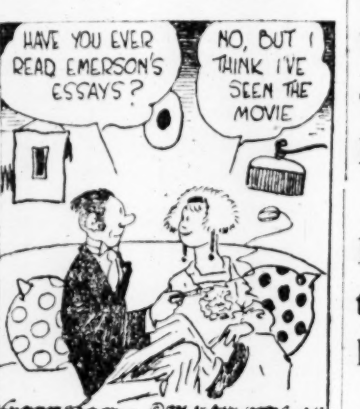

Marcelle retired promptly to her room—to watch and await the coming of the mother of little Paul. She drew the pink silk shades closer over the electric bulbs that her face might be in as much shadow as possible.

"She must not recognize me—if she should ever see me again," she ruminated, taking down her long coils of black coiffured hair and drawing it back plainly from her forehead, pinning it back in a simple coil at the nape of her neck, and donning the simplest and least effective house gown in her wardrobe.

These arrangements had certainly metamorphosed her. Looking into the mirror glass, she exclaimed half aloud with a shudder, "I could not have believed I could have looked so old and unattractive—I should not have known myself." The reflection in the mirror fascinated her.

At that moment, weak as she was, little Paul's mother was putting on her hat and coat to carry the lace to the housekeeper of the Palace hotel. It was the first time she had come near disappearing in delivering her work.

"You are not fit to go, even now, dearie—you should let me go in your stead," declared grandma, laying a detaining hand on the girl's arm.

Lena smiled faintly. "I am inured to hardships—I'll not mind it; the walk will do me good."

"Not when you have just gotten out of a sick bed; if we hadn't a bite in the house to eat, that would be necessary enough," said grandma, adding, "Little Paul has slipped down to the door—to coax you to take him along."

"I shall not take him with me, unless he begs so hard I cannot find it in my heart to say him nay," replied Lena, a faint smile curving her lips as she turned away.

"I shall make some nice hot, nourishing soup for you dearie, when you get back," said grandma. "I never counsel taking food late in the evening, but I make this an exception; something tells me you will be needful of it."

"How good you are to me, grandma—and to little Paul, too," she murmured, kissing the wrinkled old face fondly. "This is grandma's birthday—sixty today—when one is so very, very old as that, she should do nothing but fold her towel-wear hands—and just—rest," she thought.

A moment later she was wending her way down the narrow stairs to the street.

CHAPTER XXVI.

"I'll no say men are villains a' the real, hardened, wicked. Wha hae nae check but human law. Are to a few restricted."

Pauline did not see little Paul when she reached the street, deciding she had missed him by his going up the rear stairs to their rooms.

The boy had not gone upstairs, but lay curled up in a large dry-goods box on the sidewalk, peering out of a knothole, watching for his mother, when two rough looking men, walking slowly past, paused, resting their arms on the box which sheltered him. The child, afraid of rough men, kept very quiet, waiting for them to pass on. This they seemed in no hurry to do. There was that unmistakable something in both faces that awoke fear in the heart of the boy.

The heavier and darker of the two men was doing the talking—the other, listening.

"I'll tell you what, Reardon," said the dark man, bringing his heavy closed fist down fiercely upon the box—"the fact of finding Weslow in San Francisco will play havoc with our plans; he appears to have a strong notion of staying here permanently—that must not be. Tomorrow our great story of the great Alaska gold mining—get-rich-quick scheme, will be out in all the papers. It's on the press, too late to hold it back. Weslow will be the first one to see it, and characterize it as a nation-wide swindle—that means a prick in our toy balloon, and the collapse in an hour of the gigantic scheme which would have brought us in a fortune from the gulls and guys in the course of a few days."

"I feared the collapse of the thing the moment you told me Weslow was headed for this port. What do you propose to do about it, Boyd?"

"Weslow—must—not be in San Francisco when the morning papers come out—that's the long and the short of it."

"What's your plan to bring this about?" queried Reardon.

"He must go—with no come-back to it. I've located the window of his room at the hotel—I was giving that careful study when I discovered he comes out just before dinner, every night for a smoke—to a little jut of land a little distance from the hotel, sitting on a large rock. He smokes and looks intently out to sea—sometimes an hour or more—enjoying the solitude, as it were—for no one else seems to go there, save laborers, ear-er in the day, engaged in repairing an adjacent stone breakwater."

"Well," said Reardon, eyeing his companion steadily, "the plan."

Boyd smiled cynically. "A time bomb buried in the sand at his feet, bing! and Weslow would never interfere with our affairs again."

"Who will attend to this important part of your program, Boyd?"

"You," was the retort, "and you have not a moment to lose."

"I refuse!" declared Reardon brusquely. "I take equal risks with you in the get-rich-quick scheme—but your rough-neck plans—huh, you'll get someone else to do. I am going at once on board the tug."

The other argued; Reardon was steadfast. "I've made up my mind," he said doggedly—"I'm in the Alaska scheme with you, that settled, we part company for good and all."

Boyd laughed loud and long. "Since when has Reardon, the worst crook in the west—a train holdup man, for-

Mrs. Schall knows all about the bills her husband drafts; in fact she has drafted many of them, and knows their status and popularity. She knows and loves the people he represents. They are her people, too. People have found fault with Tom Schall for appointing his wife as secretary.

"It would be so easy for a disinterested secretary to deceive a blind congressman, and, incidentally, lighten his own labor. But with my wife, whose interests are my own, nothing is neglected. In fact, I think we hold the record for answering congressional mail within twenty-four hours," he added proudly.

She Drafts Bills. Margaret didn't know anything about politics then—now she loves it. I was sitting talking to the blind congressman one day when his wife had been called out of the room. "She is my eyes, she is my pencil," she had faith in me and gave me courage to go on. I have never seen her in overalls, but I know she wears them with the same grace as she did her stilet dress when I could see.

Mrs. Schall knows all about the bills her husband drafts; in fact she has drafted many of them, and knows their status and popularity. She knows and loves the people he represents. They are her people, too. People have found fault with Tom Schall for appointing his wife as secretary.

"It would be so easy for a disinterested secretary to deceive a blind congressman, and, incidentally, lighten his own labor. But with my wife, whose interests are my own, nothing is neglected. In fact, I think we hold the record for answering congressional mail within twenty-four hours," he added proudly.

Tom Schall is short of stature, tiny hands and feet, blue eyes twinkling, and a mass of wavy hair; and as a sartorial setting, blue overalls. There were those who began to wonder when he was in the house office building, "What a comfortable and convenient I always wear them for the life."

at think of it! They were both college, and Margaret first saw when a thrilling baseball game being played. There were those who followed by a lesson in life. Tom Schall kept in with a fist and diverted attention from the game to the life of the life. Margaret Schall, B. She wasn't surprised when she learned that his middle name was d. You know how it is with life.

They were both prize winners: won all the oratorical honors Margaret gathered in the life for French and German. They were both prize winners: won all the oratorical honors Margaret gathered in the life for French and German. They were both prize winners: won all the oratorical honors Margaret gathered in the life for French and German.

Four Years, and Tragedy. At these two youngsters playing game life laughed at the life. Margaret Schall studied law in order to brief her husband's cases. In the seeing lawyer, he could not to authorities or notes. He to depend entirely upon his memory.

first she had to read and so the facts for him to memorize. The darkness had led to greater enlightenment, and now, after one long year, he is almost perfect. They have won. But there were even when his wife didn't know blackness of his soul. Margaret at law rewarded their gallant effort and Thomas Schall died.

FACE AND BATH POWDERS. Lately I have received a great many letters from readers asking for formulas for bath powders. Now to be of any value a bath powder should be cooling, soothing and refreshing. It has any antiseptic properties is even more valuable because it forms a protection against the germs with which we are in hourly contact. Here is an excellent formula:

Boric acid powder... 2 ounces Starch... 1 ounce. This can be the ordinary cooking starch or finely powdered starch bought at a drug store. It is particularly good for neutralizing unpleasant perspiration odors which sometimes persist on an active skin even after a bath. If instead of starch you substitute talcum you will have a very good bath powder.

A slightly more elaborate formula is: Boric acid powder, 1 ounce; talcum, 4 ounces. Ordinary corn starch, such as I have described, is an ideal base for bath powders, for it has a silk fineness which is very soothing to the skin. It does not cling very well, therefore is not a very good complexion powder. Generally I suggest that my readers purchase face powder ready made instead of trying to make it. However, if you wish to do so, ask your druggist for rich starch. You will probably be having potato starch, but it doesn't matter. It is finer than corn starch and clings better, and it is the base of all good powders. Perfume this with sachet, or else put a few drops of perfume oil in the bottom of your powder bowl and keep it covered. The perfume will permeate all the powder in the bowl. Add a little powdered rouge if you wish a fleck of color to your face. If you are dark, light rouge if you are blonde.

Brown Eyes.—With a height of five feet six inches, at 14 years of age, you are not in need of any diet reduction. Do not eat too much candy or other indigestible foods between meals, as they will spoil your skin. As your cheeks become plump, I think this only shows that you are growing up, perhaps a bit unevenly. A few more years will show results and you should become a very good looking young woman. Do not bother now about the way you are developing.

When they came on deck, she electrified the captain by her cheery "Good morning, captain!" No hysterics, no weeping. Is it any wonder he recommended that she be cited for bravery when in great danger and that his request was granted?

Even her husband marvelled at her extraordinary coolness. "Why, I knew, she couldn't be drawn," she said, "because the lines in my palm show a rescue from shipwreck."

Mrs. Schall, I may tell you, is a wonderful pianist and this is not the only prediction that has come true. She doesn't wear her decoration. "I'm saving it to give to Peggy when she old enough to understand," she says.

Motors Out to Farm. Peggy is just two years old, and although she has a wonderful nurse, an old family friend—it does hurt to refuse her pleading "Take Peggy, mother," when Mrs. Schall leaves for the office every day.

Peggy has two brothers, Tom, Jr., and Dick, and they seem to have solved the question of perpetual motion. Hence the farm in Maryland. Margaret engineers a ragged car out to the country when the day's work is done. That is home—home with plenty of space to romp with the children, an orchard, a vineyard and quite an ambitious vegetable garden. This home which Tom Schall loves so well he has never seen except through the eyes of his wife. And he has never seen the faces of his children.

Many Beautiful Features Arranged for Big Festival

BY PAUL WARWICK.
Now that a bright and entirely pleasing Sunday has arrived to reassure Atlantans that spring, after all, will arrive, there are doubtless hundreds renewing their plans to visit Fort Valley the latter part of this month, there to view the most typically spring-like event of the year—the peach blossom festival.

Reports from the south Georgia city indicate that this, the third annual festival, will exceed by far the two that have gone before, in beauty and features of enthralling interest. So certain are the people in charge of the affair that this will be true, they are preparing to feed—at the gigantic barbecue—40,000 people, instead of the 25,000 who partook at that festive spread in the spring of 1922.

Thursday morning, March 27, the day of the event, will be devoted to the scores of entertainment features which have been arranged. One high light in this additional interest will be afforded by the three United States army airplanes which will visit Fort Valley on that day. This was arranged by Major General David C. Shanks, who is to be guest of honor, and incidentally speaker of the occasion—his talk to deal with reminiscences of forty years' service in the land forces of this country.

The floral parade is another feature of particular interest. All cities and organizations in the state are invited to enter a float, or a decorated automobile in this feature of the festival, and scores of entrants have already been received by James D. Egan, Jr., of Fort Valley, who is in charge of this part of the arrangement.

Here are some formulas. Density.—Density to "Brown Eyes" applies to you also. The other girls whom you admire are merely developing in a different way from you.

Tomorrow—Answered Letters.

All inquiries addressed to Miss Forbes in care of the "Beauty Chats" department will be answered in these columns in their turn. This requires considerable time, however, owing to the great number received. So if a personal or quicker reply is desired, a stamped and self-addressed envelope must be enclosed with the question. —The Editor.

DR. BROWN SPEAKS ON "GOLDEN RULE"

Dr. Russell Brown, pastor of the First Congregational church (colored) in addressing his congregation Sunday asserted that "The Golden Rule" located in the heart is the basis of all Christ's teachings.

"No good is ever lost," he said, "and no offense to the law of the soul goes unpunished. The citadel of life is within. Faith and love are Christ's weapons. They transform the life and start man into an eternity of thinking and acting and lead man to the throne of love, this destroying sin."

HOUSEHOLD SUGGESTIONS

Two Purposes. Newspapers spread on the floor before the carpet or rugs are laid will be effective in keeping away moths. They also tend to keep the floors warmer in winter.

Kitchen Lights. There is a certain blue electric bulb that comes just for kitchen lighting. Many housewives claim this is a far better light under which to cook than the ordinary white bulbs.

Certain to Be Mended. It is sometimes wise to sort cloth as it is mended while ironing. When you notice something is in need of a few stitches, but it is on a certain part of the clothes horse. Then that collection can be carried straight to the mending basket.

Indoor Drying. In very dry weather a great many of us dry our clothes in the basement. Clothes are apt to become a poor color by continued indoor drying. They can be whitened harmlessly by soaking over night in a tub of cold water, to which is added a heaping teaspoon of cream of tartar.

Jane Hedden Hat Pattern

EDITORIAL. Millinery has become a fascinating home industry to many women within the last year. An enthusiastic mother writes: "My daughter and I have never had such good looking hats or so many of them, and I have cut out my millinery bills in two—thanks to your hat patterns." This letter is but one of hundreds from pleased housewives who have learned to make a few hours' interesting work save shopping hours as well as dollars. To make a hat which all your friends admire and envy is very different from struggling with a home-made affair which never looks as it should. Our patterns are the same as those used in the workrooms of the smartest shops. The home woman who sews can do as neat and finished work as any millinery maker. She has more interest because the hat is her own.

2314. Taffeta in almond or Lanin green or strawberry blonde, ranging from 2314. Exact pattern and directions are given for this work, making it easy as well as charming work to construct the hat. Colors may be used to blend with the background of the hat, as peacock blue and rust on the soft blue Lanin green, or French blue and beige on the soft blue Lanin green, or taffeta are good materials for making the hat.

MATERIAL REQUIRED. One soft pressed crown, 3 yards lace wire, 1-2 yard elastic net or willow, 1 yard 3/4-inch material, embroidery threads, colored silk pieces for the applique.

HAT PATTERN ORDER. This order will bring you pattern and working instructions for making hat illustrated above. Fill in name and address, enclose 25 cents in stamps, postal note or coins—address envelope Hat Pattern Department, Atlanta Constitution.

Twenty-Acre Plot of Land Is Given Spanish Veterans

The Fitzhugh Lee Camp of Spanish War Veterans was presented Sunday with a 20-acre plot of land, just outside of Buckhead, to be converted into a park for members of the organization and their families, by Sam C. Crane, local attorney, and an official of the local camp. The ground has many natural advantages for a park in addition to a fine spring of water and an abundance of shade trees. Swings, benches and a large barbecue pit will be constructed in the near future, it was announced.

HEARTS AFIRE

BY MAY CHRISTIE
The Brilliant Novelist of Modern Society

INSTALLMENT 73.
Bert's Opinion. "There's a young lady with the patient," Janet informed Nurse Brown when the latter came in from her walk. "Don't go into the room until she comes out."

"Spouse there, no hope for his eyes?" inquired the newcomer laconically, throwing her cloak and bonnet on a chair, and setting about making herself cup of tea. "Spouse the Great One said just what I thought?" Janet nodded shortly.

Janet wasn't really quite as callous as she sounded, but she did Janet, just the same. "How did young Armstrong take the blow?"

"Like the brave gentleman he is. We've got to do the best we can to cheer him, and don't you forget it. Janet departed for the Towers. It was a sunny afternoon, but the woman's thoughts had little sunshine in them as she hurried on her mission. Reflections on her patient's ordeal and bleak future were mingled with Virginia Lee's defection and the coolness existing between Janet herself and Will, her quondam sweetheart.

What a hopeless, painful puzzle! Better to live on the surface of things, better never to feel real emotion, than to suffer so! Turning in at the west lodge gates, Janet saw Virginia Lee's two-seater car ahead of her, a man who looked like Traymore beside the fair driver. "And she wasn't well enough to see her lover?" reflected Janet grimly, with a shudder. When she reached the Towers, Mrs. Vansittart, Virginia and Traymore were enjoying a cup of tea in the library.

Janet stalked on. "How's the patient, nurse?" cried the lady of the Towers, all sympathy, for indeed she was kind at heart, and had always liked poor Peter Armstrong. "He's alive, if that's what you mean," said Janet ungraciously, "but I'm thinking it 'ud be better a hundred times if he were dead."

"Good gracious! What's happened?" Virginia bounded up from the deep "chaise longue" where she was luxuriously reclining, in a clinging mauve tea-gown of some silken stuff, and frowned disapprovingly at the look of her carefully cherished "figural." "What on earth's wrong?"

"Sit down. Don't let me disturb you," Janet took a chair and coldly regarded the entrancing vision. "Seat yourself!" Virginia shivered uncontrollably. "Don't tell me he's going to be permanently disabled. I couldn't stand that!"

"Then you'll have to stand it, and a good lot more," said Janet brutally, "because, in addition to being permanently disabled, as you call it, he's going to be permanently blind!" Virginia's tea-cup fell with a clatter to the carpet, the hot liquid making a great stain down the front breadth of the lovely silken gown.

"Good God!" she rushed at Janet, caught her by the arm, and her pointed nails dug into the other's flesh. "You're lying, just to frighten me—just because you hate me!" Janet shook her head as though she were some harmless insect. "You flatter yourself if you think I'd bother one way or the other about you, Miss Dale. I'm only here on behalf of my patient, who wants to see you, and has been asking for you. I understand you're his affianced wife, and strange—strange as it may seem to you—the general idea would be that your place is at his bedside, if he wants you. And, curiously enough, he does seem to want you."

Virginia did not appear to understand the meaning of her words. "Blind?" she repeated, "he's blind?" "Blind?" she repeated, "he's blind?" "Blind?" she repeated, "he's blind?"

"Sorry if I'm disappointing you, but there is little chance of that. Then, relaxing for a moment, and turning to Mrs. Vansittart, who was leaning forward eagerly in her chair: "The specialists both said that it's only his magnificent constitution that has pulled him through."

Mrs. Vansittart rose, and with a determined air addressed Virginia: "Get your coat and wrap at once and hurry back to the cottage with Miss Mercer. The car will take you there in no time. Hurry!"

Virginia drew back. She—a beauty lover—to be compelled to look on man's disfigurement! She—to be forced into this disgusting situation! "I'm frightfully sorry for poor Peter, but I simply can't go," she cried. "I'd faint, or take hysterics, and it would only upset him. Give him my love." She hesitated over the word "love," then substituted instead: "sympathy and—best regards and wishes. And I'll come whenever my nerves are fit enough."

Mrs. Vansittart caught her wrist with a grip of iron. "You'll do as Miss Mercer asks you, right away, or you leave this house at once. I'm not going to have any scandal under my roof, young woman! Either you visit poor young Armstrong—now—when he asks it, or you pack your trunks, and don't return to Winston Towers!"

The ultimatum was delivered like a Roman empress, and it cowed Virginia.

"Oh, well, since you're all making such a fuss . . ." She gave in, and went away with Janet on her highly distasteful mission.

"There goes a girl totally without a heart!" exclaimed Mrs. Vansittart to Bert Traymore, when the car had carried the beautiful one away. "I'm beginning to think that Peter Armstrong's tragedy has one alleviating feature, since it certainly will free him of Virginia."

"I quite agree with you," said Traymore unexpectedly.

She wheeled around on him sharply. "You mean, because you'll marry her yourself?"

Young Traymore's answer wasn't what she thought that it would be, but it was forceful.

"I know too much about Virginia. I've ever to contemplate marriage with a woman of that type!" Mrs. Vansittart gasped.

"And I thought you were wild about her?"

Here offered her a cigarette and grinned sardoniously.

"Have one? No? Excuse me if I smoke?" And then he added—

"I'm friendly with Virginia just to find out certain things . . . never mind what! But as for romance—poof!—he blew a ring of smoke into the air—she's the best creature in the world I'd ever want to marry!"

Interesting News Of Valdosta School.

Athletics featured the past week's activities at the Georgia State Woman's college at Valdosta. The sophomore quintette and the freshman quintette came together in the basketball tournament in which the sophomores captured the trophy by defeating the freshmen one point.

The lineup for the sophomores included: Kathleen Gibbs and Gertrude Anderson forwards; Johanna Voigt, center; Frances Faires and Remer Jones, guards. For the freshmen: Elizabeth Coleman and Nelle Rountree, forwards; Mary Stewart Woodward, center; Katherine Brice and Agnes Malloy, guards. The tournament was staged under the direction of Miss Jakes, head of the physical education department.

The regular meeting of the Athletic association occupied the center of Friday evening's activities, with "The Owl" in charge. The program was in the form of a stunt, "The Lyceum team," with Misses Kate Herin, Lillian Lane, Charles Weatherbee, Agnes Adams, Gertrude DeLay, Dorothy Moore and Emma Barco taking part. The officers of the association are: President, Miss Gertrude DeLay; of Rome; vice president, Miss Kate Herin; of Howard; secretary, Miss Francis Faires; of Savannah; treasurer, Miss Caroline Ashley; of Ocala; cheer leader, Miss Olin Brand, of Valdosta.

The visit of Lieutenant Boulware and Prof. Edwin J. ## Spend Less Money For Non-Essentials, Negroes Are Urged

"The reason why the colored race has so many members who are living in poverty and their children are not being given an opportunity of receiving an education is because their parents have not a fixed purpose in life," said Rev. B. R. Holmes, president of Holmes Institute, Sunday morning in delivering a special sermon in Turner Memorial A. M. E. church. Rev. A. A. Duncanson, pastor, urged the colored men to give their wives and children better support, and spend less money for non-essential things. Rev. J. G. Brown, pastor of Ebenezer Temple, A. M. E. church, delivered an impressive sermon to the students of the Holmes Institute Sunday afternoon in the college chapel on "How to Make Good Citizens." Rev. G. J. Jordan, pastor, made the closing remarks.

Music was furnished by the students of Holmes Institute. Rev. B. R. Holmes spoke in Second Mt. Olive Baptist church Sunday night to a large audience on "How to Make Good Citizens." Rev. G. J. Jordan, pastor, made the closing remarks.

Vote for MARVIN P. ROANE BUNCO MR. VOTER? Yes, Bunco Mr. Taxpayer, YOU Are the Victim LISTEN TO THESE FACTS:

The county fee-grabbing ring at the courthouse wants to gouge you out of $2,333,011 in the next four years. So they got together and called one of these quick action primaries, hoping you would not notice it. That's how all bunco games are worked. They try to catch you napping. But they won't catch you napping this time, because here are the figures in cold black type.

The exact figures for 1923—$520,111.
Half of this amount should go into the your County Treasury.
At an average increase of $25,000 per year:
The fee grabbers will cost you $545,111 in 1925.
The fee grabbers will cost you $570,000 in 1926.
The fee grabbers will cost you $595,000 in 1927.
The fee grabbers will cost you $620,000 in 1928.
Total $2,333,011.

The fee grabbers have a bill they want to pass abolishing the fee system in 1929. Not next year, in 1925, but in 1929, nearly five years from NOW.

Are you going to elect the county ring candidates who have already introduced their bill abolishing the fee system in 1929?

OR

Are you going to elect able men who will abolish the fee system in 1925 and give you capable and efficient service on the salary basis?

My opponent for Tax Receiver, W. H. Abbott, has been a fee beneficiary for 23 years. For nearly a quarter of a century he has been working with the fee grabbers and identified with them. HE STILL HAS ONE MORE YEAR OF ENJOYING THE FAT FEES THAT OUGHT TO GO INTO THE COUNTY TREASURY FOR YOUR USE. This one year alone will insure him forever against pauperism.

Every Dollar Spent With Reed Oil Corporation Continues to Build and Serve Atlanta

Atlanta's First Filling Station

In 1913—11 years ago—R. N. Reed built the first filling station having a concrete driveway and a covered roof south of the Ohio river, and according to many, in the United States. It was located at the corner of Peachtree and Currier Streets. From this beginning Reed has been steadily building and growing with Atlanta.

Today the 18 conveniently located Reed Stations testify to the spirit of Reed and Atlanta—growth and progress. They are the result of a service to the public faithfully performed.

Today an army of over 7,000 autoists is served with the same spirit of courtesy, promptness and appreciation as were the handful of customers in the day of the first Reed station.

Eyes of World Turn Today To St. Patrick and Ireland

BY PIERRE VAN PAASSEN

At a time when the re-awakening of nature takes place, when the first breath of magic spring is stirring the hidden life beneath winter's bare soil—the eyes of the world turn to St. Patrick and Ireland.

For there the struggle is still going on as it was in the days before the Christian era. There is a lull at present as there have been in the past but Ireland continues to offer a constant exhibition of the most pathetic patriotism linked with the greatest courage.

Ireland has had many wars. Their memory uplifts the Irish heart; not without reason, for no nation, no people, can reproach Ireland with having wronged them.

No man can read the history of that "distressed country" without being struck by the extraordinary heroism and the undying devotion of the people to the ideals of human freedom.

When Agricola advised the empire builders of Rome that they should "war down and take possession of Ireland, so that freedom might be put out of sight," the Irish clans in Scotland turned to their motherland for help and the sea was white with the hurrying oars of the men of Erin, speeding to aid their highland kinsmen.

Ireland has always kept up that struggle. Against the Normans, Tudor, Stuart and Cromwell's assaults.

Even today Ireland presents the one "lost cause" of history that admits no defeat.

Against the resources of a mighty realm, great courts, world famous monarchs, the clans always kept up the struggle.

Whenever an Irishman has fought in the name of Ireland it has not been to acquire fortune, fame or land, not to found an empire but to strike a blow for an ancient land and a swordless people.

Wherever Irishmen have gone they have carried the image of Ireland with them. And the image of Ireland is one of gentle courage, of deep burning of sweet poetry of beauty and magic.

Rev. Richard D. Stinson, principal of the Atlanta Normal and Industrial institute, delivered the morning sermon at the St. Mark's A. M. E. church, Sunday, taking for his subject, "Show Thyself Approved Unto God." The faculty and student body of the school were present.

"Whatever may be said or thought the negro accomplished more real permanent good when he trusted more implicitly in God than in those times when he trusts only himself and the conditions surrounding him," said the speaker.

"I would not have you believe," he continued, "that I am not a strong believer in education and especially that training does not fit the individual for that thing he can do best, yet I do believe the one and the two-talented person has a distinct place."

"There are too many idle boys and girls who are in schools for which leaders and others claim they left the farm and home to attend. Whoever goes wrong, the negro must go right for he has had a limited opportunity for what he calls a chance in life."

"The negro home, the practical schoolhouse and the church must comprehend these facts and press them to the hearts of negro boys and girls. There must not allow race prejudice, politics, or the race for the might dollar blind us and our children in laying a foundation for a consistent Christian life. No permanent headway can be made by any people who attempt to leave out of life the things taught by Jesus."

Not all the ruthlessness of a barbaric age, nor the cruel suppression, nor the penal laws of the last century have ever been able to obscure the Irish vision of a homeland made free.

The Irish have given Britain her bravest soldiers, some of her greatest orators and scholars, philosophers and poets. To America more than to any other country they gave of their labor, their love of freedom and their happy disposition.

To the world Ireland has given saints and scholars. There were times when Erin was kept out of sight. That was the policy of ruthless imperialism, but so long as one Irishman was alive the ideal never died.

No people's history is such a history of sorrow. "Of all histories, the history of Ireland is the saddest," said Goldwin Smith, the Englishman.

Yet there is no road without a turning. As Saint Patrick looks down upon his beloved Erin from another world, he may see the dawn of a brighter day. Ireland is marching toward independence. Each drop of blood in the past thousand years, but the close of each episode in the struggle shows Ireland nearer the goal.

Hope has sustained that people through the ages. That same hope will some day change the time of "the most distressful country as ever yet was seen" into a song of freedom.

St. Patrick is the emblem of a new era for Ireland.

His anniversary comes during Lent, which precedes the Resurrection. Already is Erin coming out of the sombre shadows of the past. The time is not far distant when that country will take the place of which the poet wrote:

"When Erin first rose from the dark, swelling flood,
God blessed the green island, and saw it was good;
The emerald of Europe, it sparkled and shone,
In the ring of the world the most precious stone."

schoolhouse and the church must comprehend these facts and press them to the hearts of negro boys and girls. There must not allow race prejudice, politics, or the race for the might dollar blind us and our children in laying a foundation for a consistent Christian life. No permanent headway can be made by any people who attempt to leave out of life the things taught by Jesus."

The itinerary, as announced by Manager Joe Bennett, former Atlanta and all-Southern football star, includes: March 21: Atlanta, March 22: LaGrange, March 23: Griffin, March 24: Macon, March 25: Albany, March 26: Tallahassee, Fla., March 27: Thomasville, March 28: Valdosta, March 29: Waycross, April 1: Brunswick, April 2: Savannah, April 3: Waynesboro, April 4: Augusta, April 5: Athens, April 11.

The club this year promises to make the biggest hit of any in recent years. The program includes such stars as Jimmie Melton, "saxophone king;" "Hap" Harvey, premier comedian of the university, along with "Half Pint Man" and "Hubby" Allen; Brooke Johnston, Minor Wheaton, Carlton Mell, Felix Hargrett are among the best singers in southern college circles, and the Georgia Four is one of the best quartets in the country. It is composed of Jimmie Melton, J. Brooke Johnston, John Tanner and Felix Hargrett. The Georgia Bulldog orchestra will accompany the club.

The personnel of the club and officers follows: John W. Tanner, president; J. Brooke Johnston, leader glee club; C. R. Anderson, leader instrumental club; Joe Bennett, business manager; Louise Lamar, assistant manager; Chubby Allen, assistant leader glee club; George Fesperman, assistant leader instrumental club, and Todd Watson, advertising manager.

REV. R. M. STIMSON GOES TO COLUMBUS

Rev. R. M. Stimson, pastor of the Gordon Street Presbyterian church, announced Sunday that he had accepted the call of the First Presbyterian church at Columbus to take the place of Dr. T. S. McElroy, who resigned some time ago to fill a pastorate at King's Mountain, N. C. Mr. Stimson, who has been pastor of the Gordon Street Presbyterian church for the past six years, received the call from the Columbus church more than two weeks ago.

Mr. Stimson came to Atlanta from Danville, Va., where he served the Shelton Memorial church for five years. He is well known and highly esteemed in Atlanta church circles, and his resignation was received with deep regret by his congregation.

A committee was appointed Sunday to decide upon a pastor to fill his place.

Decatur Residents Given Another Week To File Tax Returns

Decatur, Ga., March 16.—Decatur citizens who have not yet made city tax returns have a few more days of grace, as time has been extended through March 22. It was announced yesterday. The regulation time expired last Saturday, but due to the number yet unfilled, the extension was necessary. Collection of taxes will start May 1, the date set for payment of first installments.

Lands to be sold because of unpaid taxes in 1923 will be advertised in April and the sale will be held Tuesday, May 6.
